By Lieutenant Colonel Robert H. Barrow

In 1967, the 2nd Battalion, 5th Marines was deployed to the Arizona Territory, a remote and inhospitable region of South Vietnam. The battalion was tasked with conducting search and destroy operations against the Viet Cong, who were operating in the area. The Marines faced intense combat, and the battalion suffered heavy casualties. However, the Marines also displayed great courage and determination, and they ultimately achieved their objectives.

2nd Battalion 5th Marines In The Arizona Territory 1967 is a historical account of the battalion's deployment to the Arizona Territory. The book is written by Lieutenant Colonel Robert H. Barrow, who commanded the battalion during the deployment. Barrow provides a gripping and personal account of the battalion's experiences during the war, and he offers a unique insight into the lives of the Marines who fought there.

The book is divided into three parts. The first part provides a brief overview of the Vietnam War, and it sets the stage for the battalion's deployment to the Arizona Territory. The second part of the book follows the battalion's combat operations in the Arizona Territory. Barrow provides a detailed account of the battalion's major battles, and he describes the challenges that the Marines faced. The third part of the book discusses the aftermath of the war, and it follows the Marines as they return home. Barrow also discusses the long-term impact of the war on the Marines who fought there.

2nd Battalion 5th Marines In The Arizona Territory 1967 is a powerful and moving account of combat and comradery. Barrow's writing is clear and concise, and he provides a vivid and unforgettable portrait of the Marines who fought in the Vietnam War.
